FAREWELL TO RETIRING MEMBERS

MR. CHAIRMAN: Hon. Members, I now rise to bid farewell to the hon. Members who are retiring after completion of their term in the Rajya Sabha. Some of them I notice may be returning and I am very glad that they will be with us again. Those who are not returning to the House will certainly be missed by those who remain behind. The departure of one's colleagues brings sadness and so this occasion to a certain extent is a sad and solemn one. But the fact remains that one who comes to Parliamentary life must accept as natural that even good things in life come to an end at one time or another. I am sure the retiring Members will have a sense of fulfilment. The friendship that we have developed will continue in life but the contact and company will be missing. Voices which were familiar to us will not be heard in the House. No more points of order from these Members; some in order, some not so. No more questions, some unduly long and some argumentative, will come from friends. No more will they be able to partake in the deliberations of the House or some time in the heated interruptions, which are also a part of our proceedings. The Members had worked together in harmony and naturally sometimes in confrontation also, but always I am sure for the good of our country. I shall like to place on record my personal appreciation and thanks for the valuable contribution made by all retiring Members and the kind courtesy shown by them to me. Hon. Members, Parliament is not the only
